TESTIMONIALS.

From Sir George Smart.—Messiah and The Creation. Octava Edition.—"I consider the arrangement of both these Oratorios to be most excellent; it includes all that the vocalist can desire, and the instrumentation is adapted in a very masterly manner; the appendix to 'Messiah' is a valuable addition."

From Mr. Braham.—John Bishop's Arrangements.—"The arrangement is the best I have seen. The orchestral points are most accurately taken up, and presented in so clear a light, that the musical intellect can fully appre-

CHORUSES of ISRAEL in EGYPT. each, 4d. and 0 6

And the children of Israel sigh'd	I will sing unto the Lord
They loathed to drink	He is my God
He spake the word	And I will exalt Him
He gave them hailstones for rain	The depths have covered them
He sent a thick darkness	Thy right hand, O Lord
He smote all the first-born	And in Thy greatness
But as for his people	Thou sentest forth Thy wrath
Egypt was glad	And with the blast
He rebuketh the Red Sea	Who is like unto Thee
He led them through the deep	The earth swallowed them
But the waters overwhelmed their enemies	The people shall hear
And Israel saw that great work	The Lord shall reign (No. 1) (No. 2)
And believed the Lord	Sing ye to the Lord

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"This handsome imperial 8vo., embodying the principal instrumental additions of Mozart to the score of the greatest of sacred composers, is highly creditable to the spirited publishers, and to the talent, diligence and judgment of Mr. John Bishop. * * * A perfect edition of this monumental work, at a really moderate price, of unsurpassed accuracy, and convenient size, is no mean achievement. The scriptural references given throughout will be acceptable to many, and the entire words of the oratorio, which are printed separately and prefixed, add completeness to this edition."—Morning Advertiser, Feb. 7, 1853.

"Handel's Messiah—The Library Edition. Her Majesty's Publishers, Messrs. Robert Cocks & Co, have just issued the most complete edition that has yet appeared of this immortal work. It is superbly printed on extra fine stout paper, in imperial octavo, and contains two hundred and fifty-seven pages. A price has been named incredibly low, with the view of putting within the reach of the members of the popular choral societies an edition of the greatest of Handel's compositions, which, while it is worthy of the library or music rooms of the wealthiest persons, also courts the attention of the humblest admirers of the great author, offering to the world a copy of the musical chef d'œuvre adapted for all spheres, and fitted for all time."—Globe, Feb. 14, 1853.

"It is not often that cheapness is combined with increased utility, still less frequently that beauty is added to an object for which a smaller sum is asked; yet this rare combination is met with in the new octavo edition by John Bishop, of Cheltenham, of Handel's 'Messiah'—the most superb edition, probably, of a musical work ever issued in so compact a form. It is printed from a new fount of type (and is really a fine specimen of typography), upon a strong extra fine paper, in imperial octavo; and, in addition to its exterior advantages, it presents a new and more careful arrangement of the whole vocal score from the larger edition, with remarkable and valuable additions, more particularly an appendix, containing altered versions of several pieces by Handel himself and by the great Mozart."—Observer, Feb. 6, 1853.

"The above is the most beautiful edition, considering its commodious size, of Handel's deathless work which has yet come to our notice; the publication of so complete a volume at so moderate a price reflects the highest credit on Messrs Cocks, who have already worked zealously for the liberal distribution of musical knowledge. * * * * * *
The value of these improvements will be sensibly felt, the more so since the work itself claims such universal attention; in its present form, we are enabled to judge at once not only of the great genius of Handel, but also of the discriminative ability of Mozart."—Sun Times, Feb. 6, 1853.

"A new edition of the Messiah, of which countless editions already exist, would scarcely seem to be called for. Nevertheless, Mr. John Bishop, an old and experienced hand, and Messrs. Cocks, who are indefatigable in giving to the world the most vast and important musical works, have thought otherwise, and, in a very handsome, convenient, and portable edition just issued, and of which they have kindly favoured us with a copy, they have shown that they had reason on their side.

The folio edition of Messrs. Cocks and Bishop has been gene deservedly praised; and we need say no more in favour of th and more universally available copy, than that, with some unn alterations, and some very important additions, it is the sam folio. * * * The new edition of the immortal Oratorio will b sought, not only by profes.ors but by amateurs."—Musical Feb. 12, 1853

"The Messrs. Cocks deserve well of all true lovers of Sacr for the issue of this handsome volume; and we trust—nay, certain—it will meet with that support which it merits. Here for a mere trifle, the completest edition of that sublime wo greatest in the list of sacred composers. * * * Altogeth folio. * * * The new edition of the immortal Oratorio will b sought, not only by profes.ors but by amateurs."—Musical Feb. 12, 1853

"The Messrs. Cocks deserve well of all true lovers of Sacr for the issue of this handsome volume; and we trust—nay, certain—it will meet with that support which it merits. Here for a mere trifle, the completest edition of that sublime wo greatest in the list of sacred composers. * * * Altogeth of the Messiah we have ever seen."—Atlas, Feb. 12, 1853.

"The Messiah, by George Frederick Handel, as arranged Bishop in an octavo edition, must be considered one of the most valuable, and necessary musical publications that has for so made its appearance from the great house of Robert Cocks those music publishers of European reputation. Its price (onl would not be too much for one of the pieces in this magnif d'œuvre of Handel. This publication, both from its price and ment, must prove to be what both editor and publishers inte highly popular work, and supplies a desideratum the necessity has been long felt."—Wexford Independent Feb. 16, 1853.
